

Dear FCC:

Having the nation's media in the hands of a few media conglomerates is not a good idea. I can't see how Americans can receive broader coverage of the news (which is already so limited and homogenized) and diverse opinions when there are so few gatekeepers. Already, whether I turn to ABC, CBS, NBC, CNN, MSNBC...I'm getting the same news coverage. And the situation is only going to get worse if you allow these folks to own more stations, more newspapers. On the radio front, Clear Channel owns too many stations and I'm tired of their not using live DJ's and broadcasting "wonder bread" music to stations across the nation. Where's the diversity?

I know you folks don't give a hoot what the public is telling you, but I wanted to let you know what I think nonetheless. I'm just hoping Congress will step in and overturn your vote.
